Two Day National Webinar

On TEACHER EDUCATION AFTER COVID-19: Challenges and Possibilities

The covid-19 pandemic has affected educational system worldwide. Billions of learners have been affected due to the pandemic. The closure of educational institutions impact not only students, teachers, and citizens, but also have far-reaching economic and social consequences. The impact was severe on the CHSN (Deyang Jais). Although online mode is the only way to manage the teaching-learning activities yet it cannot be the replacement for face to face education in terms of quality as well as quantity.

However, it is high time for educational leaders to play a vital role. There is a popular English proverb that says "counsel the hour, counsel the man" the idea that the good leaders will come to the forefront during times of crisis. In fact, in the present situation every stakeholder has to play a significant role to lead the education at his/her own level. The job of the leaders include a communicator, supporter, problem solver and troubleshooter. Their role is not only to deal with the teaching-learning, assessment and evaluation activities, but also to administer the financial and social challenges.

Keeping in view the entire situation, a national level webinar has been planned to have a discussion and consultation of the issues related to the theme.

KEY OBJECTIVES OF THE WEBINAR

The key objectives of the webinar is sensitizing the students, teachers, head of the educational institutions and policy makers to the recent challenges, and to orient them how to deal appropriately with this global crisis by playing a leading role.

MODE OF INTERACTION

The mode of interaction will be online from participants' comfortable place only. The participants will be facilitated to interact with resource persons and scholars associated with educational administration and leadership.
